Taiwan Association for Endoscopic Surgery

The Taiwan Association for Endoscopic Surgery (TAES) was established in 1982, and it has been 30 years since its inception. Under the leadership of previous directors and the efforts of members, minimally invasive surgery has become routine procedures in various surgical fields. In recent years, the rapid development of robotic surgery has made surgeons even more powerful.

In this academic symposium, there is still a section for surgical video competition that all members are most interested in. Through the superb surgical videos of various experts, all members and young generations can learn from the valuable experiences which also lead to better quality of minimally invasive surgery in Taiwan. The agenda also includes clinical research related to minimally invasive surgery for members, hoping to reassure all members in daily practice by high-qualified evidences.

We are delighted to welcome Professor Sang-Uk Han from Korea, whose remarkable achievements in gastric cancer surgery have garnered international acclaim. With his wealth of experience and insights from the KLASS-02 trial, Dr. Han brings invaluable knowledge to our gathering. We eagerly anticipate learning from his expertise and discussing the advancements in laparoscopic gastrectomy for advanced gastric cancer.

Another important speaker is Dr. Salvador Morales-Conde, a trailblazer in laparoscopic techniques and innovation. As the President of the European Congress of Laparoscopic Surgery, Dr. Morales-Conde's leadership has propelled the field forward, inspiring surgeons worldwide. We look forward to his presentation on innovation, inspiration, and the motivation driving surgeons to excel in patient care.

Last but certainly not least, we extend a warm welcome to Min-Ho Huang, a beacon of perseverance and innovation in Taiwanese surgery. Dr. Huang's journey from inception to fruition in the realm of minimally invasive surgery embodies the spirit of progress and dedication. His insights into MIS and building up the IRCAD of Taiwan promise to enrich our understanding and stimulate discussion on the future of surgical practice in Taiwan.

We encourage all attendees to seize this opportunity to engage with our distinguished guests, exchange ideas, and foster collaborations that will further advance the field of minimally invasive surgery. Together, let us embark on a journey of learning and discovery that will shape the future of surgical excellence in Taiwan. Welcome, esteemed guests, to the Taiwan Association for Endoscopic Surgery.
